Is U.S. policy towards Israel/Palestine creating anger?

“Yes,” says most people round the globe. They link U.S. occupation of Iraq with Israel’s occupation of Palestinian territory. Why does this U.S. policy increase anger?

• U.S. taxpayers pay for Israel’s occupation of Palestinian lands. During that 37-year armed occupation, the U.S. has given Israel over $100 billion, mostly for its military.1 Currently, total U.S. aid to Israel is about 1/3 of the U.S. foreign aid budget.2

• Recently, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) acknowledged Israel’s duty to protect its citizens, but ruled that Israel must not build a wall on remaining Palestinian lands. Yet 90% of the completed wall will be on that land.3 The wall divides Palestinian families, cutting off access to their land, jobs, schools, and medical care. It traps 200,000 Palestinians on the Israeli side.4

Israel has driven millions of Palestinians from their ancestral homes and forced them to live in refugee camps. Now Israel, using U.S.-made tanks, bulldozers, and missiles, is attacking those camps, destroying homes, uprooting orchards and farms, and killing thousands of refugees and their children.

World Health Organization? Minimum requirements established by the U.N. have not been met, even by moderate settlements. 5

Israel and its over 150 illegal settlements divert 75% of Palestinian water for their own use, leaving Palestinians with less than the minimum requirements established by the World Health Organization.6

Israel’s illegal settlements and their children’s educational institutions and homes and schools.

How can we change U.S. policy to respect international opinion and institutions and stop the U.S. policy of supporting illegal settlements and camps? Begin by telling Bush, Kerry, Murray, and Cantwell to cut off U.S. military aid.
